Purpose: To review the teaching, readings and assessment for the course and bring in any recent work that is accessible to undergraduates. Two main changes to the reading list were discussed. For topic 2, the book by Philippe Aghion was proposed instead of Chapters 3 and 4 from Debraj Ray's book. Many also felt that it was desirable to introduce an alternative reading for China, to replace the chapters in the book by Pranab Bardhan (reading (v), topic 1). It was decided that teachers of the course would look at alternatives. If no input was received on these two areas before the start of the new session, the old reading list would be continued. Since no feedback has been received, the reading list remains unchanged for the 2015 semester. The previous reading list is appended below.

Topic-wise readings
